

Outbound Filtering

Outbound filtering allows email to be sent out from your organisation via the Maildistiller platform ensuring additional outbound spam and virus protection for the sender along with message traceability and disclaimers which protect companies from any legal ramifications that may otherwise occur.

The business importance of outbound filtering.

Whilst it can be catastrophic a company to be the recipient of a virus or malicious content it is many times worse to be the sender of such content.

Worse still is if the recipient of the infected email is a customer of yours and you are responsible for negatively impact on their network.

Not only will this undoubtedly ruin your relationship with that client but additionally your overall reputation as a trustworthy and secure organisation.

Who wants to do business with someone who might just collapse their entire network by sending through a dodgy email?

Outbound Spam and Virus protection.

With the increasing layers of protection being deployed by ISP's and corporations to combat unwanted content, legitimate email is getting caught up in various inferior content detection programs.

Maildistiller now offers you the ability to route your outbound email through our platform where it will be tested against industry class spam thresholds.

This offers you a deeper understanding of what messages you are sending and what messages are potentially not getting to their intended recipients.

In addition to this you can be assured that you are not in the embarrassing position of being accused of sending corporate SPAM.

Message traceability

It's even easier to track your outbound mail with Maildistiller. Simply access the Maildistiller console and view the outbound tab in the interface to review the status of your message delivery. You can view whether your message has been delivered, bounced, delayed or rejected and it even includes any reason for the outcome.

Disclaimers

Maildistiller has made it even more convenient for outbound customers to append an outbound disclaimer to all emails coming from an organisation. We also offer the ability to have multiple outbound disclaimers depending on your department or your position within the company. You can even add different tags to Sales / Support / Management by utilising the group functions within Maildistiller.

IT GETS BETTER!

At Maildistiller we are proud to offer our partners all the benefits of outbound message filtering as a completely free service when you avail of our standard inbound filtering service.

Meaning that regardless of how much you charge your customers for the outbound service, its 100% profit to you!
